Bloomfield Hills Student Pursues Entrepreneurship Through Hillsdale College Fellowship

The Kehoe Family Initiative for Entrepreneurial Excellence prepares students to launch successful businesses.

HILLSDALE, Mich. — Luke Burmeister of Bloomfield Hills was selected as a fellow of Hillsdale College’s Kehoe Family Initiative for Entrepreneurial Excellence. The fellowship is a five-semester program for Hillsdale College students who aim to join the free market as entrepreneurs after graduation. Sophomores of all majors were invited to apply during the fall 2024 semester.

Burmeister is pursuing a major in psychology and minors in biology and chemistry. His business idea is tech-free wilderness experiences.

“My business idea involves taking groups on revitalizing technology-free overnight kayaking trips. The experience will have an emphasis on mental health and recovery,” Burmeister said. “I applied to Kehoe to develop my professional skillset and actualize my entrepreneurial goals in order to make a positive impact in other people’s lives. I’m excited for the opportunity to receive direct mentorship on the development and management of an independent organization.”

Other members of the new cohort include:

- Hershey Athysivam | Dallas, Texas | politics major and journalism minor
- Abriana Badalamenti | Shelby Township, Michigan | psychology major and early childhood education minor
- Eva Bessette | Dallas, Texas | art major
- Alex Cho | Fullerton, California | economics major and entrepreneurship minor
- Isabelle Ellis | Silver Springs, Maryland | intended rhetoric & media and history majors and German minor

- Trevor Hall | Lexington, Massachusetts | physics major and math minor
- Nathaniel Mack | Clyde, Michigan | intended marketing major and computer science and entrepreneurship minors
- Andriy Pasichnyk | Troy, Michigan | economics major
- Nathan Scoffield | Three Forks, Montana | politics major
- Nathaniel Shackelford | Bay Village, Ohio | intended English major
- Luke Waters | Williamsburg, Virginia | English major

“Entrepreneurship, the right to forge one’s own livelihood, is an important example of the freedom Hillsdale College stands for,” said Ken Koopmans, founding director of the Kehoe Family Initiative for Entrepreneurial Excellence. “It is our privilege and responsibility to prepare our students to succeed as entrepreneurs guided by the principles of virtuous civic engagement.”

Fellows take two business courses, participate in seminars and workshops, and hear from established entrepreneurs through the Executive Speaker Series. They also have access to The Experts’ Nexus, a group of alumni and other professionals willing to mentor them. Fellows receive education in the principles of free enterprise, create their own business plans, and launch their businesses. The initiative awards a $10,000 scholarship over the course of five semesters to each accepted student.

The program started when Koopmans spoke with Kevin Kehoe, an entrepreneur who owned a consulting firm and founded a software company. With a generous gift to Hillsdale College, Kehoe founded the Kehoe Family Initiative for Entrepreneurial Excellence, which welcomed its first cohort in 2021. Although Kehoe died of cancer in 2022, the program continues his legacy of virtuous entrepreneurship.
